

PD ESCAPE PLAN

No temptation has overtaken you but such as is common to man; and God is faithful, who will not allow you to be tempted beyond what you are able, but with the temptation will provide the way of escape also, so that you will be able to endure it.

I CORINTHIANS 10:13 (NASB)

God has given you everything you need to respond well to the temptation you face: the temptation that moves you toward relapse. He has given you His Word, the Holy Spirit, and a small group to walk with you. In addition, as part of your Pure Desire group, you are learning to live in honesty through your weekly check-in, walk in freedom through the Relapse Prevention (Three Circles) Tool, and rehearse the Personal Promises given to you through God's Word.

However, at times, these tools fade from our view as the limbic system begins to take over, attempting to drag us down the same painful path of self-medication. In order to avoid this, we must have a pre-determined plan of action, or an Escape Plan. This plan defines, ahead of time, the specific, clear, and realistic steps that we can take to extricate ourselves from the downward spiral of addiction.

AN EFFECTIVE ESCAPE PLAN HAS THREE VITAL ELEMENTS:

1 A clear understanding of the “alarms” in your life. What are the red flags or warning signals that go off in your brain, trying to tell you that a relapse may be imminent? What thoughts, feelings, actions, locations, or scenarios have been a problem for you? These exercises might help you identify some of your alarms:

- Think back through any relapse in the last six months to a year—what commonalities do you observe?
- When do you hear yourself starting to justify or minimize your actions?
- What situations make you start to isolate or hide from loved ones?

---

2 Facing the reality of your addiction. In the past, what are the actions that would have moved you closer to relapse? Take some time and review your Matrix of Addiction (pg. 107 in Seven Pillars of Freedom Workbook) or the Arousal Template (pg. 153-162, Unraveled; pg. 145-146, Seven Pillars of Freedom Workbook). It is essential that you connect the feelings of alarm (as described in element 1) to your typical pattern, otherwise you will ignore this reality and slide further toward relapse. Ahead of time, if you can begin to identify what the typical “next step” is for you that takes you in the wrong direction, you will gain the self-awareness you need to choose differently!

3 Concrete, specific steps that you must take to escape the downward spiral. As you consider what these steps might be, here are some things to keep in mind:

- Pick actions that require very little time or planning. For example, processing with a counselor may be a highly effective activity, but this usually requires an appointment. You need to create steps you can take immediately.
- The most repeated command in Scripture when dealing with sexual temptation is to FLEE. What does “fleeing” look like in this situation? Turning off the tempting device? Getting out of bed or going to a different room? Leaving a party? Standing up and getting active?
- Look for action steps that move you out of isolation and into community. If you are home alone, how can you be around other people? Who could you call for support, even if it means leaving a message? Most addicts wait too long to ask for help. Victory comes from connection with others, not willpower.
- Pay attention to what the Holy Spirit is saying. I Corinthians 10:13 tells us that God always provides a way out. What are the methods of escape that the Spirit regularly puts in front of you? Examples: Be honest with a spouse or friend that I am struggling, don’t turn on a device when I am alone, or go and get some exercise.
- Temptation often appears stronger when we are Hungry, Angry, Lonely, or Tired (HALT).<sup>1</sup> If you are feeling any of these physical symptoms, what steps could you take to alleviate the condition?

On the following chart, answer for as many scenarios as you can. Use additional paper if necessary.

The Alarm: Signs of Trouble	Past Actions: Leading Toward Relapse	Action Steps: To Prevent Relapse
Example: Procrastinating at work; surfing the Internet	Example: Tip-toeing around provocative sites/material	Example: 1) Take a 10-minute walk break, 2) call a group member, 3) shut down my computer for at least one hour

IN ADDITION TO THE ESCAPE PLAN, YOUR SURVIVAL KIT SHOULD INCLUDE THREE MORE ELEMENTS:

A Letter to Yourself: Writing a letter to yourself is one of the most powerful instruments you can place in your arsenal to keep from going back to your old addictive cycle. While you are in a healthy place, write a letter that identifies how you want your life to be and the kind of person you want to become. Describe the type of relationship you want to have with God, your spouse, and your kids. Remind yourself of the futility and shame of acting out, and the negative consequences that occur because of it.

**For a great example of a Letter to Yourself, see the last two pages of this document.*

Mementos of Change: Collect a few objects that represent the motive for your change. Some examples include:

- a picture of your family or of the important people in your life;
  - objects, coins, or medallions that remind you of significant moments of healing in your life;
  - letters or cards of encouragement you have received from others; and
  - favorite Scripture verses or song lyrics that God has used to speak to you.

Recovery Action Plan: This is a covenant you have made with your spouse or group members. It spells out exactly what you will do if you relapse during your healing process. It includes the natural consequences that you developed, on your own or in your group work, and consequences that you have chosen to follow in order to encourage brain change. (A spouse will also have a plan that spells out the specific steps to take in order to provide for his or her healing.) Copies of these plans can be found on our website at puredesire.org/tools.

Together, these four items—an Escape Plan, A Letter to Yourself, Mementos of Change, and a Recovery Action Plan—provide a powerful deterrent from acting out and relapse. Walk through these four tools often, so that you will remember the steps to your plan and will be able to implement your plan when you need it most!

LETTER TO YOURSELF

Writing a letter to yourself is one of the most powerful instruments you can place in your arsenal to keep from going back into the old addictive cycle. You'll read it when old cravings for coping mechanisms come up. The enemy will hammer hard at the stress fracture in your soul, the place of your former weakness. Yes, God is healing you, but your history gives you a unique vulnerability. What could you tell yourself in that situation to help you return to sanity and reality?

Write out the letter in detail. At your next meeting, have your group members write supportive comments in the margins. When the heat is on and your head is going sideways—back to the old addictive craziness—you'll have their support as well. Carry the letter with you at all times. If it's too long, write a summary on a three-by-five card. Your letter should address the following:

- What are the probable situations that would lead you to read the letter? In other words, where's your stress fracture? ("When I feel lonely, rejected, abandoned, worthless...")
- What will happen if you ignore this letter?
- What must you do in order to avoid relapse?
- What is the God-given dream you have in your soul?
- What is ultimately at stake?
- What truth do you need to hear at this moment?

HERE'S AN EXAMPLE OF ONE YOUNG MAN'S LETTER:

Dear Joe,

You're obviously in a tough place right now because you're reading this letter. But just because you're struggling doesn't mean you have to give in. Of course it feels overwhelming right now, because you're probably alone and want to feel better fast.

Please remember you've traveled this path many times before. You always end up in the same place—deep regret. There, you'll feel loaded down with shame and even farther from God than you do now. Also, remember:

- You'll want to hide what you did from others and lie about it.*
- You'll never truly enjoy it; it will always make you feel more empty and lonely.*
- You'll despair over your broken commitments to God and others.*
- You'll let the other men in your group down.*
- Your God-given dream will become tainted and seem impossible.*
- You'll have to face the external and natural consequences of your decision.*
- Although you know it's not true, you'll struggle afterward with the feeling that any problem you face is God's punishment for your behavior.*

Joe, the enemy and your flesh is whispering false promises into your soul, promises that never work. So identify where the pain is and what you need.

- Are you lonely or bored?*
- Are you feeling worthless?*
- Are you angry or overwhelmed?*
- Are you hungry or tired?*

Ask God for help. Call some of your group members immediately. Get what you need and refuse to do the one thing that will only make things worse and crush your heart for God.

If anyone would see what you're about to do—your friends, your parents, your group members—would you still do it? You're called of God and set apart for His purposes. He designed your life to make a difference. What you're thinking of doing will be a major setback. Remember the consequences this will have in your future marriage.

You matter to Christ. He'll meet your needs in a way that respects your value.

Please, Joe, listen to what you've written here. You know in your heart that what you're considering will never fulfill your soul. Don't lie to yourself—respect yourself. Care enough to let this temptation go. Let it pass, it won't last forever. Call a group member and fight this battle together.

Love ya, Joe
