When a body is forced to respond to a vaccine to which it already has established antibodies, it can wreak havoc on the immune system and can create delayed reactions and lead to chronic diseases and conditions.

CAN PUPPY AND KITTEN VACCINES PROTECT FOR LIFE?

Research shows that many animals maintain adequate protection for 8 years and possibly lifetime after they have been immunized as puppies or kittens (similar to our human childhood vaccines). Vaccinating a body that has adequate protection is not only unnecessary, but can be contraindicated. Consider annual Titer testing as an alternative to routine vaccinating which can compromise their health.
