

Cancer Screening FAQ

Take home points

- Screening tests are recommended for specific age groups looking for particular diseases.
- Cancer screening tests are currently used to find early-stage cancer in the breasts, lungs, cervix, and colon.
- Deciding which patients to screen for a specific disease is a very hard and complex topic.
- Screening tests should help as many people as possible live longer.

What should I ask my doctor?

- Which screening tests do I need at my age and with my family medical history?

Other questions I have...

Other questions I want to ask my doctor.

What I am thinking...

My notes and thoughts.

What I am feeling...

How I feel about this information.
