

Recurrent Cancer

Take home points

- Recurrent disease can occur anytime, months to many years after the original diagnosis of a cancer. (A dandelion can grow back at any time.)
- Recurrent disease is classified as either a local recurrence or distant recurrence.
- Each type of recurrence is treated very differently; the prognosis and available treatment options vary greatly.

What should I ask my doctor?

- Do I have recurrent cancer?
- What type of recurrence is it?

Other questions I have...

Other questions I want to ask my doctor.

What I am thinking...

My notes and thoughts.

What I am feeling...

How I feel about this information.
