If you're new here, Welcome! Newsletter archives are posted on our website.

Greetings Everyone!

I was trying to think of something interesting to share, but I - too - am lacking creative inspiration when confronted by all of the work required to reopen pools. A lady in my business group put it very succinctly in a quote I reshared on Instagram:

"We sat on two sides of the fence: some would say those working were the lucky ones, some would say those off were lucky. It was hard no matter where you were in this, let's not divide us. We all carried a huge weight for the last three months and stretched ourselves to the limit. I am tired. I love what I do so I always get excited to have new projects. I got tired of the Facebook groups, the Zoom calls, the controversial posts, the fear and questions, the politics of a virus, the mystery of every day."

As you get back to rebuilding your facility, we're here to help. We've answered emails, calls, texts about everything from change room traffic flow to signage, membership policies, and supplemental disinfection systems.

At the end of the day, you're fully capable, the hardest part is not getting discouraged before you even start. Let's be clear: it IS a huge mountain of work, and particularly exhausting because it's creative, i.e. working on - not in - the business. But, with your experience, you can do it. Be like the kid below and just start.

FYI - we're moving back to monthly newsletters, so the next one you'll receive is July 2. You'll also receive the specific newsletter you subscribed to: Eastern Canada, Western Canada, and International that were consolidated during COVID. We'll also be sending our newsletter from a new server, Zoho Campaigns. If you don't get an email from us in July, contact us so we can troubleshoot getting you on the new lists!

Water safety is not a one size fits all approach

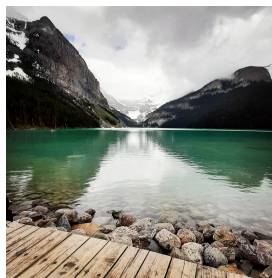

Lakes are very different than pools. You can't see through lake water. It's deep. And it's murky. And if something goes wrong, it's not rescue... most horrifically, it's recovery.
