

the acadia tide white rug

This white-on-white striped area rug was named after the smooth white pebbles found in rivers in the Himalayan Mountains where it was hand woven. The high/low texture is a deceiving, as this piece is technically a flat weave -- a barefoot-friendly mixture of soft New Zealand wool and even softer mohair. It's a wonderful alternative to sisal for those who want a neutral that packs a bit more of a stylistic punch. For a more dramatic version, see the Acadia Glacier rug. Can customize up to 40 feet wide.
