

RG0091AG: RIGARDS x ZIGGY CHEN Encore

Continuing the momentum from the first collaboration, RIGARDS and ZIGGY CHEN have reunited for a fresh interpretation of the half-rimmed glasses. Influenced by Zen aesthetics and the proverbial concept of half-full and half-empty coexisting in the harmony of a perfect orb, the design shies away from non-structural elements, allowing characteristic elements like the graceful curves of the endpiece, the generous width, and the slender arms with a teardrop loop end to shine through. The upward-curving saddle bridge distributes weight more evenly and includes adjustable, half-moon-shaped blonde horn nose pads to create a more comfortable fit. By making the frame from sterling silver (a first foray for both brands), not only is its exquisite quality and quiet beauty powerfully showcased, the elegant weightlessness both in appearance and mass is also brought to the fore. All in all, an exercise in restraint that's hard to take your eyes off.

The unisex release consists of two finishes—smoothly polished and subtly textured matte—both of which can be outfitted with prescription lenses, or your choice of either dark or light gradient lenses.

About RIGARDS

From the ballsy to the enigmatic, the seductive to the nostalgic, natural horn to sterling silver, RIGARDS frames have forged an instantly recognizable style that combines offbeat aesthetics with a quiet elegance, much of which pertains to the brand's audacious craftsmanship and fresh use of traditional materials. No less compelling are the original signature finishes, imparting nuance and character to the frames and creating a distinctive bespoke element. If you love expressive, nonconformist eyewear, your heart will be gladdened by RIGARDS.
