Introducing In Between, a contemporary lounge table in solid oak.

A new addition to the In Between collection, this elegant lounge table is careful to echo many aspects of the series' existing pieces. Its gentle curvature proves reminiscent of the negative space found between the In Between chair's back panels; similarly, the outward splay of its legs mirrors that of the chair's, too.

Award-winning designer Sami Kallio established his eponymous studio in Gothenburg, where he designs furniture that translates classical shapes into contemporary expressions. He has labouriously honed his skills in traditional woodworking craftsmanship – an expertise that can be seen in the two classical techniques used to produce In Between. First, he used compression molding to make the piece light and thin, while still strong; second, he used a CNC milling machine to achieve greater detail.

“Wood turning is a result of my love for Scandinavian heritage and traditional crafting,” he explains. “There is a satisfaction that comes from using old techniques.”

&Tradition CEO and Founder Martin Kornbek Hansen adds, “Sami Kallio’s dedication to wood as a material is beautifully expressed in his In Between series, which celebrates its timeless quality.”

For Kallio, man and machine enjoy a duality in his creations as he merges modern methods of industrial manufacturing with handcrafted techniques. While the table is produced in a traditional way, it comes disassembled as a flatpack to ensure environmentally-friendly, easy transport, and its assembly requires no tools. It is available in two heights and three different sizes, and comes in three finishes: Black Lacquered Oak; White Oiled Oak; and Smoked Oiled Oak.
