

SQ Sconce

SQ Sconce - a rectilinear form undergoes a series of changes and refinements to become something new. The process is similar to working like a sculptor facing a large slab of marble. The design is hidden within awaiting to be discovered, to be chiseled, carved, and manipulated to arrive at its final form. The end product is a tastefully scalloped piece that has been rotated so that you are subtly confronted with an edge that blends in with the adjacent sides. These scallops give the product a pinstripe like effect that makes for interesting pattern and texture to add to a space. Its open ends allow for the light to cast an ambient glow through the shade and onto the wall.
