

What Should You Buy Your Dad For Father's Day? 20 Gifts He'll Actually Love

Thursday, June 2, 2016 by Jessica Booth

For some reason, picking out a gift for your dad is exponentially harder than picking a gift for your mom. I love my dad and know him very well, but for some reason, I still always have an incredibly tough time trying to find the perfect present for him. But since Father's Day is coming up (June 19th!), I have to start thinking about what I can buy him that he'll love... and I'm sure many of you are in the same boat as me.

There are tons of options out there, but there are some classics you just can't really go wrong with. I mean, every man is not the same, so these won't work for the entire male population, but I bet you'll find at least one thing here your dad would appreciate and use. These are things he might not buy for himself, but that he definitely needs – even if he won't admit it. A lot of dads tend to be low-maintenance, but even those dads will love these – and the high-maintenance dad will love these as well. You can't go wrong! Here are 20 gift ideas your dad will want this Father's Day. You're welcome!

6. Men's bath products

I recently gave my dad, boyfriend, and brother a bunch of Marlowe products, and they're obsessed. I was originally attracted to the simple but cool packaging, and then I loved the fact that these are more all-natural products for dudes. There's a lot in the line to look at (moisturizer, face wash, body wash, etc.), but I think beard oil is always a nice gift option. Plus, these are so inexpensive!