

Naked Kitty Deodorant Info + Tips

- Discontinue use if rash or irritation occur.
- Apply directly to dry underarms. There's no need to wet the stick or your armpits! Wait a few minutes to apply after shaving or waxing underarms in order to minimize the potential for irritation.
- The deodorant does melt at warm temperatures (summer, warm climates, in your car, etc.); it's best kept in a cool dry place (your bathroom is fine and it likely won't melt there). If you're travelling somewhere warm, pack the deodorant in a ziplock bag and keep it upright if it has melted when you arrive at your destination. Store your deodorant in the fridge once it sets to avoid further melting. It will also melt in the car in the summer, or in your purse.
- My deodorant is crumbling or has melted out of shape and set wrong, how do I fix this? Pop your deodorant in the microwave for 10-second intervals (no more than one 10 second interval if it's the Travel-Sized version). If you don't have a microwave, run your tap hot, fill up a bowl and hold your deodorant upright in the bowl. Things should work smoothly again after you've let it set, best if you let it sit somewhere cool overnight. When it has melted, it should set back in the tube on its own if kept upright. Don't worry if your deodorant looks marbled: this is how the ingredients set in the tube.
- Give yourself a couple of weeks to a month to transition to natural deodorant if you've been using drug store anti-perspirant if this is your first time using the Naked Kitty brand deodorant. You may find you'll need to reapply a second time during the day, but often this isn't the case!
