The Definitive Guide to Pregnancy-Safe Skincare

BY RACHEL BURCHFIELD / SEP 21, 2021

Prefer to stick with just one brand? Tatcha's skincare is pregnancy safe, as the brand doesn't formulate with retinols or Retin-As. (For sensitive skin, check out The Rice Polish Calming, The Essence, Indigo Overnight Repair, and Indigo Soothing Body Butter in particular.) Tammy Fender's products are also pregnancy safe, but, since its Bulgarian Lavender Body Oil contains a high concentration of lavender, the brand's eponymous founder recommends discontinuing use during the first trimester. "Though, it is a wonderful product to use throughout the rest of pregnancy," Fender notes.
