

THE MAGAZINE ABOUT SHOPPING

Lucky

FREE STUFF!
ALL NEW LUCKY BREAKS PAGE 117

PRETTY
LITTLE LIARS'
Lucy Hale

SEXY, HEALTHY
HAIR

259

So Cute!
FALL PIECES YOU
CAN WEAR NOW

NEW FASHION
IDEAS

STREET
STYLE
SPECIAL!

AMAZING JEANS
THE PERFECT HAT
MUST-HAVE BAGS

AUGUST 2013

$3.99US $4.99FOR

08>

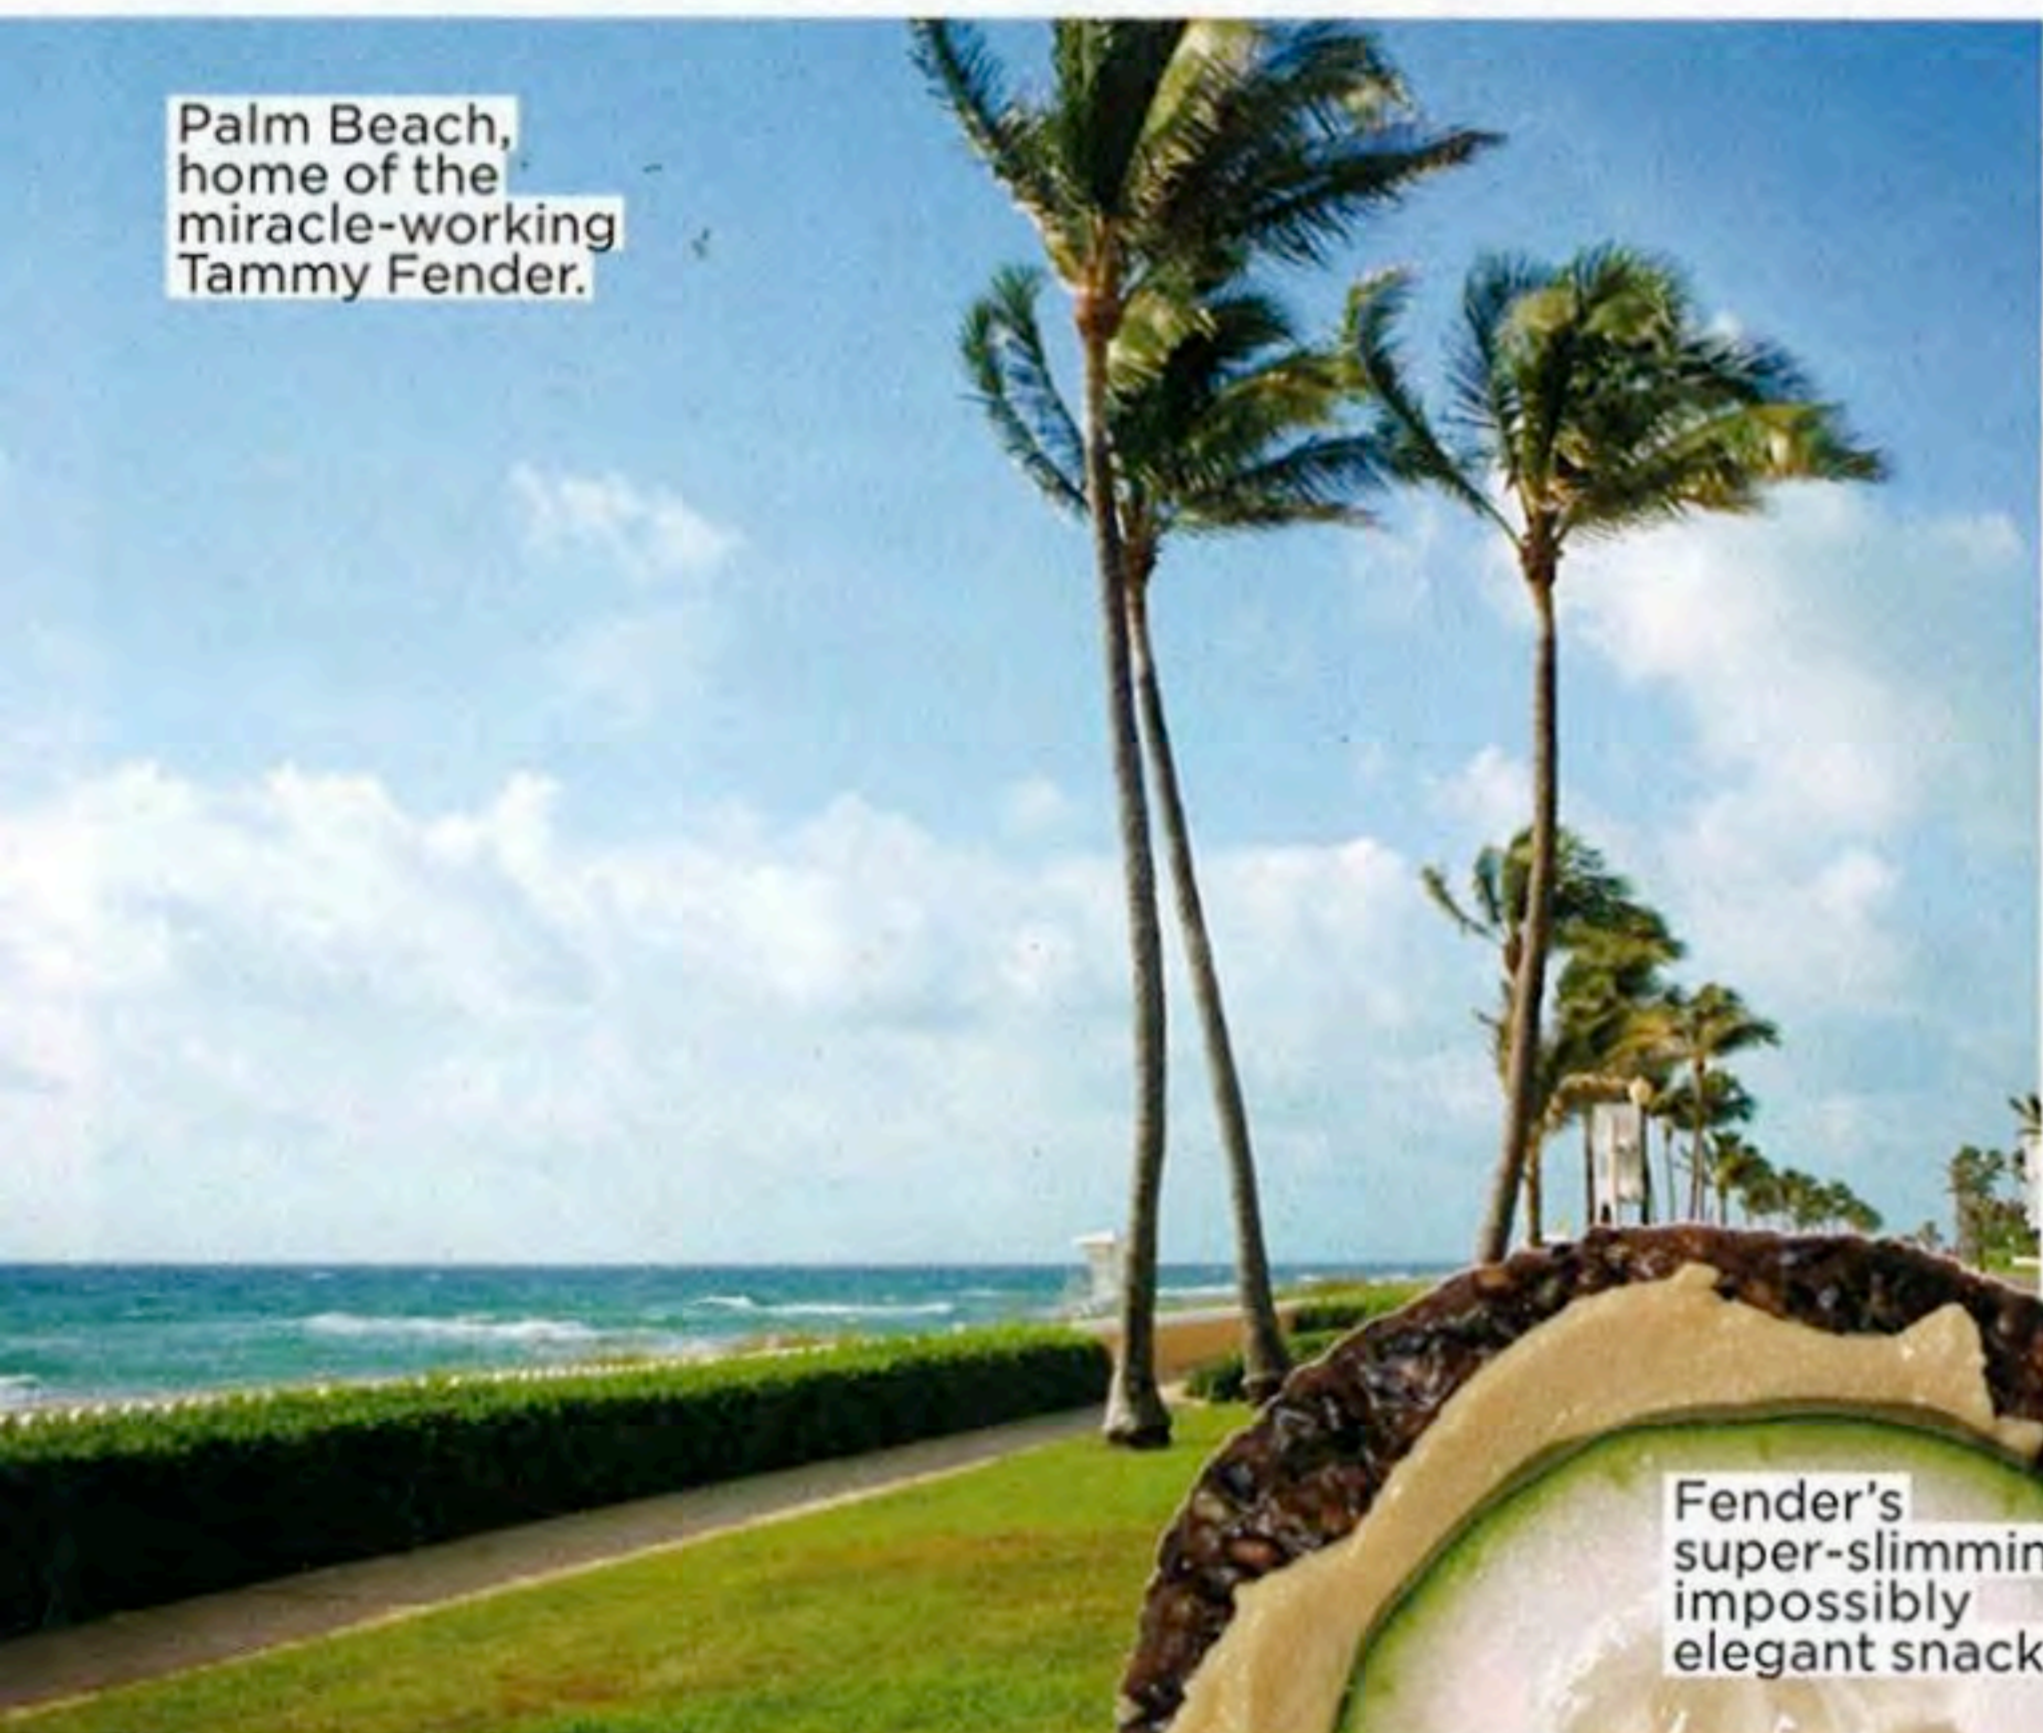

08451

07533648

THE BEAUTY CLOSET

Beauty editor JEAN GODFREY-JUNE finds the ultimate impartial skincare judge: the TSA man.

Palm Beach, home of the miracle-working Tammy Fender.

Fender's super-slimming, impossibly elegant snack.

I think gorgeous people look in the mirror and are as astounded as we are when we look at them.

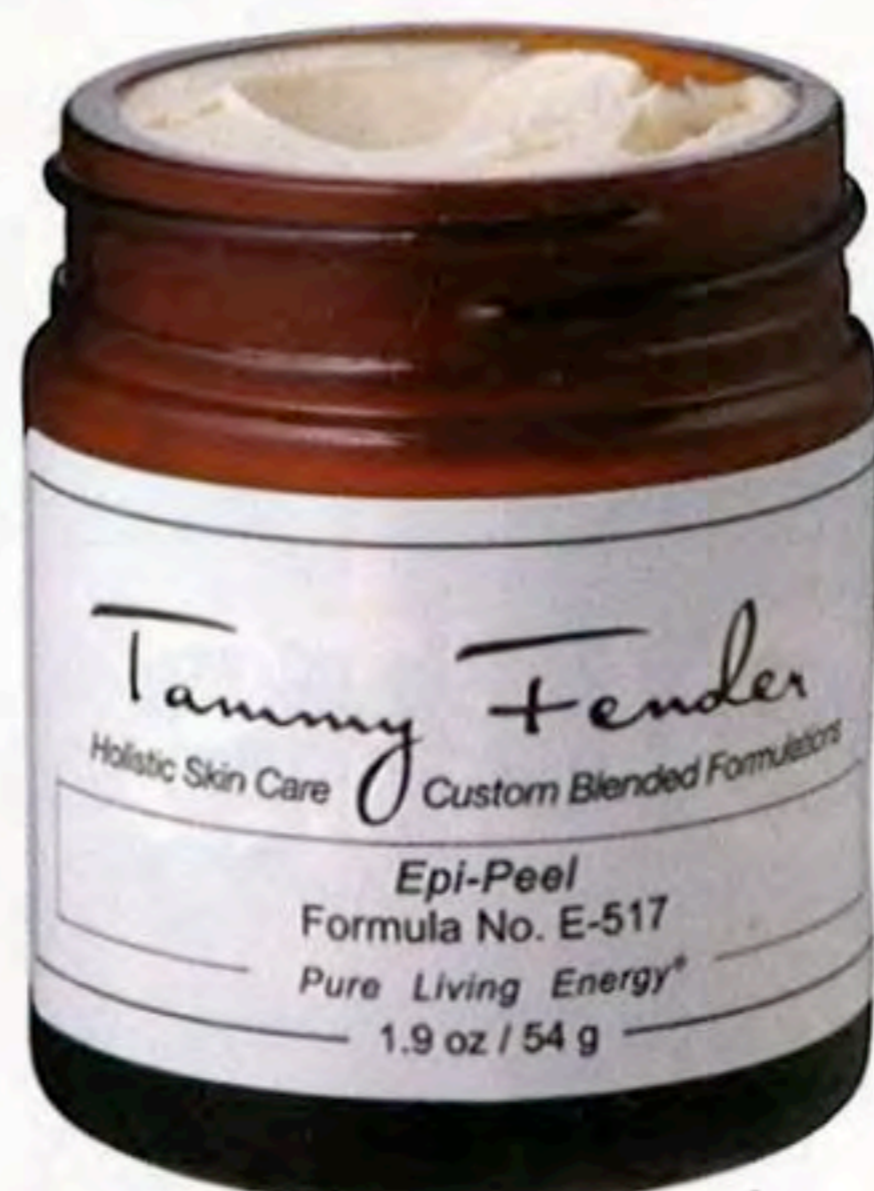

"How did this happen?" they marvel. The Gwyneths of this world can't account for their own gorgeousness, so they blame it on things like, say, creams from Tammy Fender.

Gwyneth reportedly swears by said creams; I went for a facial with the creams. The charming Palm Beach house-turned-salon is carefully painted in shades of white, with white curtains everywhere. Everything is all-natural, organic, holistic. There are teas and waters and delicious snacks. * The facial itself is heaven: Fender and an incredible reflexologist work in tandem; I have never felt better.

But I had to run to catch the flight back to New York. Unbrushed, barefaced, I raced to the airport, hoping not to see anyone I knew (is there any light less flattering than an airport's?). I waited in the hideous line, handed the TSA man my papers. "Miss?" said the TSA man, a hundred travelers swirling around him. "Miss? I just have to say: You are glowing. Your skin! It looks amazing!"

I now do the peel that gave me The Glow Perceptible to Even the TSA Man once a week, and it is, in fact, amazing. *My other takeaway from my several hours at Tammy Fender is this delicious/super-slimming/impossibly elegant snack: Take a San-J black sesame rice cracker, spread it with hummus and top it with a thin slice of cucumber—like a tea sandwich, but healthier and infinitely more satisfying.

Follow me! @JeanGodfreyJune, or read (many) more bits of my beauty advice on luckymag.com.

Tammy Fender Epi Peel, $80, tammyfender.com

If you have roots—even for a day—this powder is going to change your life. You smooth it on and you have no roots anymore, period, until you wash your hair. I've tried root fixes before, and they get you by, but they look like paint. This looks just like your normal, everyday, super-individual, just-exactly-your-color hair. A roomful of models—each with a different hair color, hair type and root situation—was instantly and utterly transformed. Highlights? Solid gray roots? Your jaw will drop, I swear.

Color Wow Root Cover Up, $35, ulta.com

YSL La Laque Couture Tie & Dye #2 in Pop Coat, $25, bloomingdales.com

The purpose of this gorgeous, glamorous parfait-of-a-nail-polish shade is beauty and silliness. It leaves a chic sheer pink on your nails, but the joy of it is sitting by a pool with a stack of magazines, something cool to drink and nothing to do but dab at your toes with the brush from this, the prettiest nail polish ever devised.