How to take care of your CUCKOO CLOCK

Cleaning your cuckoo clock

To keep your cuckoo clock looking bright and attractive requires only a simple cleaning practice.

A soft, dry paintbrush or static dusting cloth will keep dust and dirt build up away.

Please do not use harsh chemicals anywhere on the clock, as it can damage the wood and varnish.

It is not recommended that you oil or spray ANY of the internal mechanism. This can severely damage the working parts. A can of pressurised air can be used to remove dust internally.

Don't use harsh chemicals on the treated wood

Light dusting is best done with a static cloth or paintbrush

Don't use any oil in the clock movement specialist skills and equipment is required for servicing.

Regular Servicing

Just like a car, a Cuckoo Clock will need regular servicing by a professional Cuckoo Clock repairer.

A regular service done every 7-10 years will ensure your clock continues to run smoothly. The German Village Shop has an onsite Cuckoo Clock Specialist who can perform a full mechanical assessment and necessary repairs at your convenience.

Environmental factors

Environmental factors can affect the way your clock runs and its longevity. Warm or moist air can warp and distort wooden parts, while dust and heat may dry out oils and create wear on moving parts.

It is highly recommended to keep your clock out of areas with high humidity and extreme heat. Therefore, careful consideration must be taken if you wish to hang your clock in kitchens, wet areas and over fireplaces.

- 🍂 Regular servicing will keep your clock working for decades
- 🍂 The German Village Shop does on site servicing and repairs
- 🍂 Be mindful of keeping your clock in areas with high humidity and extreme temperatures
