Course Description:

No skill is more important to student achievement than the ability to read and derive meaning from the printed page. School improvement plans in virtually every school, regardless of grade level configuration, underscore the importance of all teachers working toward helping students to learn to read and to use their reading skills to learn key information in each subject area. It is no surprise that reading skills are often the first consideration in overall student achievement and the subject of a host of initiatives in every state. State and national grants, professional development efforts, and specific school improvement plans all focus upon helping students to be effective readers who can ultimately use reading and reasoning skills independently for a variety of purposes. This is especially significant with wide ranges of reading abilities that are present in today's classroom along with the challenge of teaching students who do not speak or read English. It is clear from the research that positive and intentional classroom practice toward this goal is enhanced through coaching. Using coaching principles, grounded in respectful interaction, can grow the skills of team members.

This course focuses upon the all-important coaching relationship in improving student reading achievement. Seven components of successful reading programs are the foundation of reading achievement: phonemic awareness, phonics, fluency, vocabulary, comprehension, writing about the reading, and content area reading skills.

Intentional best practice in each reading component is emphasized as the basis for the coaching interaction. Through learning activities, observations of teaching and practice and application of skills, participants learn how to establish a positive, respectful, caring and confidential coaching relationship that allows each partner to grow and learn in a safe, collaborative and guiding atmosphere with the common goal of increasing student reading achievement.

Course Objectives: By the end of the course, participants will:

- Understand the elements of a positive coaching relationship
- Establish operating principles and plan for an effective coaching experience
- Understand best practice in each of the seven components of successful reading: phonemic awareness, phonics, fluency, vocabulary, comprehension, writing about the reading, and reading in content area skills

- Understand how enduring understanding, student engagement, student outcomes, and teacher behaviors that cause learning to happen are foundational to every subject and to the coaching interaction
- Design and use essential questions in reading instruction and in coaching
- Use the Foundational Four in lesson planning and design
- Understand four components of reading instruction to plan for in every class, especially content area instruction: reading with and to students, vocabulary/decoding, comprehension, and writing about the reading
- Differentiate instruction based upon enduring understanding, while varying difficulty and complexity of content that is read
- Choose effective methods for data collection and analysis
- Observe effective coaching methods and practices
- Identify effective communication structures and those that detract from a positive coaching experience
- Construct effective reading lessons based upon research-based practice in reading
- Observe one another and conduct coaching conferences and feedback analysis
- Distinguish between effective and ineffective lessons/instructional episode/practices
- Learn how to assess text fit and to differentiate instruction using appropriate resources and identified, common standards
- Differentiate comprehension questions, understanding that for some students literal questions are more difficult than inferential
- Understand the different reading demands of specific subject areas and design lessons to assist reading in content areas, with special emphasis upon reading rate
- Design a building-wide coaching and collaboration process for increasing student reading achievement
- Observe and conduct an effective data-driven coaching conference

Student Expectations:

This online course is experiential, interactive, and features many streaming video training modules. Participants will complete journal exercises and online assignments. In addition, participants will be expected to practice and use specific skills in their own setting and report the results to the online forum. Participation is necessary for passing the course.

All LAUSD participants are required to keep a log of their in class time as well as their outside time. A time log is provided and must be submitted at the end of the course in order to complete and receive your Salary Points.

Special Features:

This course provides opportunities for a variety of skills practices. These practices are designed to address a variety of student learning styles and to vary the methods and modes of practice. Lessons in video format and those summarized in the course are also varied to include some that are direct instruction, some that are facilitated instruction, and some that are constructivist in nature, as the coaching and reading skills are being practiced. Observing lessons in video format are particularly helpful in illustrating both the reading and coaching skills to be learned.

Grading:

- Forum Post Exercises/ Reflective Journals: 70% of your final grade
- Quizzes: 10% of your final grade. Quizzes may be submitted up to 3 times each and the highest score of the 3 will be used.
- Final Exam: 20% of your final grade. You must receive a score of 60% or greater on the final exam to pass this course.
- You must have an 80% average to obtain university credit for any course. You must have an 80% average to pass the course unless your district has specified otherwise. If your district has specified a different percentage needed to pass, it will be posted in “Your District Information” in the District section of the site.
