Episode 1 – I’m Blind And I Can Beat You At Cricket

Welcome to the brave new world of women’s blind cricket in India.

In 2019, the hastily formed Karnataka women’s team unexpectedly reached India’s first-ever National final. Their stellar run ended with a loss to the eventual champions from Odisha.

Now, despite the pandemic’s impact on their lives, Team Karnataka is fighting its way back into the game through intensive training.

Looming ahead is a big rematch with Odisha, and the girls are hoping to avenge their loss.

Head Coach Shika Shetty has organised a series of friendly matches with neighbouring state team Tamil Nadu. Will they be up to the mark?

Team Karnataka gets the surprise of a lifetime when they meet their sighted counterparts from the Karnataka women’s state team. This includes national cricketer Monica Patel, who attempts to play blind cricket for the first time...and learns that it is more challenging than can be imagined.

Episode 2 – Women’s Blind Cricket Face-off – Team Karnataka vs Team Odisha

After a two-year break due to the pandemic, Karnataka’s women’s blind cricket team is finally facing its arch-rival again - the reigning champion from Odisha.

Both teams are gearing up for the showdown - an epic three-match tournament in Bangalore.

Team Karnataka’s coach Shika Shetty is leaving nothing to chance and is determined to make her girls bring their A-game. She engages them in a critical warm-up match against the Karnataka men’s blind cricket team.

Despite injuries and setbacks, the women from Karnataka are determined to beat Odisha and lift the trophy. Along the way, we discover what they’re made of, and why their visual disability will not be hindering their dream of making the national team.

Defying the odds, their message to the world remains: We Don’t Play Dolly!
