Sapelo Comforting Compress Ritual

The Sapelo Comforting Compress Ritual helps to open the pores and soften the skin, preparing it for exfoliation. It also makes the client feel swaddled in warmth and aroma, so take your time with this process.

To prepare the facial compresses, fill a bowl with very warm water. If you are using additional aroma, add a couple of drops of your selected essence to the bowl. Immerse the cloth and wring out the excess water.

1. With compress prepared, mist the guest's face with 2 pumps of Sea Lavender Mist from hairline to upper chest.
2. Immediately apply the compress by placing it on the forehead and over the eyes. Slowly apply gentle pressure to the forehead.
3. Begin wrapping the clients face by anchoring the cloth on the forehead. This allows the compress to feel snug as it envelopes the contour of the lower jaw.
4. Cover the lips as well and be certain to leave the area just under the nose uncovered so that the client can breathe freely.
5. Begin the compressions...at the neck...the jaw...the cheeks...and at the forehead.
6. Apply gentle pressure to the point on either side of the nose. When you do this, apply your pressure upwards and slightly from the side so as not to pull down on the cloth, at the tip of the nose.
7. As you unwrap the cloth, layer it on the forehead and give the forehead one last firm compression. Then lighten your pressure as you lift slightly up and toward the hairline. Take the cloth with you as you perform this wiping motion. Rewet the cloth and repeat this step a second time.
8. The next series of compressions will be along the neck and décolleté.
9. Re-wet the muslin cloth and place it on the décolleté. Perform gentle compression starting that the center of the décolleté and moving out to the shoulders.
10. Bring the compress up to warm the trapezius muscles and apply gentle pressure. When you do this, be certain that you are not pulling the cloth tightly across the throat.
11. Next, adjust the cloth so that it covers and warms the neck while applying a very gentle compression.
12. Remove the cloth and repeat the process.
