WHAT MAKES A GOOD PHOTO?

Close up photos will produce more vivid results. Try to submit photos that are close to the subject in the photo. Long shots will make the subject smaller and more difficult to identify on the final product.

The general rule is that a white subject on a white background will be difficult to see, as will a dark subject on a dark background. Ensure there is sufficient contrast in the photo.

Please ensure the file you submit is lower than 3MB. We will scale the image to the size of the block. Simply scan the photo if it isn't digital already, save as .jpg and submit.

THE UNDERLYING CRAFT

Light is a property that is capable of penetrating through the surface of transparent materials. Using a high energy density beam, the laser is made to focus on a location spaced from the surface of a transparent material.

The beam meets a pre-programmed location on the X-Y-Z co-ordinates which is referred to as the 'optimal energy point'. The beam then engages in a process which applies intense heat which burns a crack into the crystal.

Over 500,000 cracks later, an impression is formed impressively suspended in the centre of a crystal block whose surfaces appear completely untouched. It's magic!
