MASTER CARBON SEAL

The United States Navy's Sea, Air and Land Teams, commonly known as the Navy SEALs, are the U.S. Navy's primary special operations force and a component of the Naval Special Warfare Command. Among the SEALs main function is to conduct small-unit maritime military operations that originate from, and return to, a river, ocean, swamp, delta, or coastline. SEALs are trained to operate in all environments (Sea, Air, and Land) for which they are named.

The rigors of the SEAL training regime are the stuff of legend. Basic Underwater Demolition/SEAL training, or BUD/S, is designed to find and develop warriors of the strongest character who give everything they have to accomplish their mission and support those on their team. The Master Carbon SEAL 3800 series, with its many enhanced features, is the latest evolution of the Original Navy SEAL timepieces and has an ultra-lightweight Carbon Compound case, stainless steel screw in crown, multi-jewel Swiss quartz movement and sapphire crystal with anti-reflective coatings.

Luminox started its relationship with the Navy SEAL teams over 20 years ago when SEALs first discovered the unique self-powered illumination technology found in Luminox watches, and requested a watch series be made for them. Since that first meeting Luminox has continuously updated its line of watches to meet the demanding requirements of this community of warriors as well as the needs of other elite forces around the world.
