Korea's Secret to Beauty & Longevity

Grace's Story

From the beginning of mankind, our bodies were designed to fight disease naturally through nutrition and a healthy balanced lifestyle. Our ancestors foraged plants and made natural medicine to prevent and cure diseases. But now, we live in a world that is sedentary and too convenient, numbing our pain by consuming preservative-filled foods, prescription medications, and exploiting our ecosystem. This is ruining our health and longevity.

At the age of six, I suffered from chronic health issues and was misprescribed many times while my family navigated the frustrating labyrinth of the American healthcare system. Our last resort was to seek help from my grandmother who was an Eastern medicine doctor. Acupuncture and herbal remedies enabled my body to heal naturally, and I realized the importance of health, nutrition, and growing my own plant medicine at an early age. My chronic pain became my saving grace.

As a Korean American, I had the privilege of being taught to embrace both cultures from my grandmothers who have shared their secrets to holistic healing through plants and in Eastern medicine. Rooted in ancient Korean herbalism, Qi Alchemy is dedicated to bringing the most effective and highest quality herbal blends to the modern world.

I hope to share these functional herbal blends that have proven to be so beneficial for many people, with health and wellness progressives around the world.

We are all from a garden.

Qi Herbs

South Koreans eat their way to glowing skin and overall balanced health by consuming ancient herbal remedies.

Korean red ginseng, known as the Elixir of Life, has been used for centuries in traditional Eastern medicine for improving overall health, regulating mood, strengthening the immune system and skin health. Our proprietary blends formulated by Dr Jun, one of the first traditional Korean medicine doctors to practice in America, have been clinically proven for over 40 years and passed down by generations of teachers.

Our 21 essential herbal ingredients are harvested and fermented in South Korea's rich soil, and is the perfect solution for balancing the body's nutrients. Our herbs are specifically designed to boost your immunity and enhance your calm and focus as well as glowy skin.

100% of our herbs are harvested and fermented in South Korea and produced in a Korean FDA certified facility.
