The all year (cold) frame

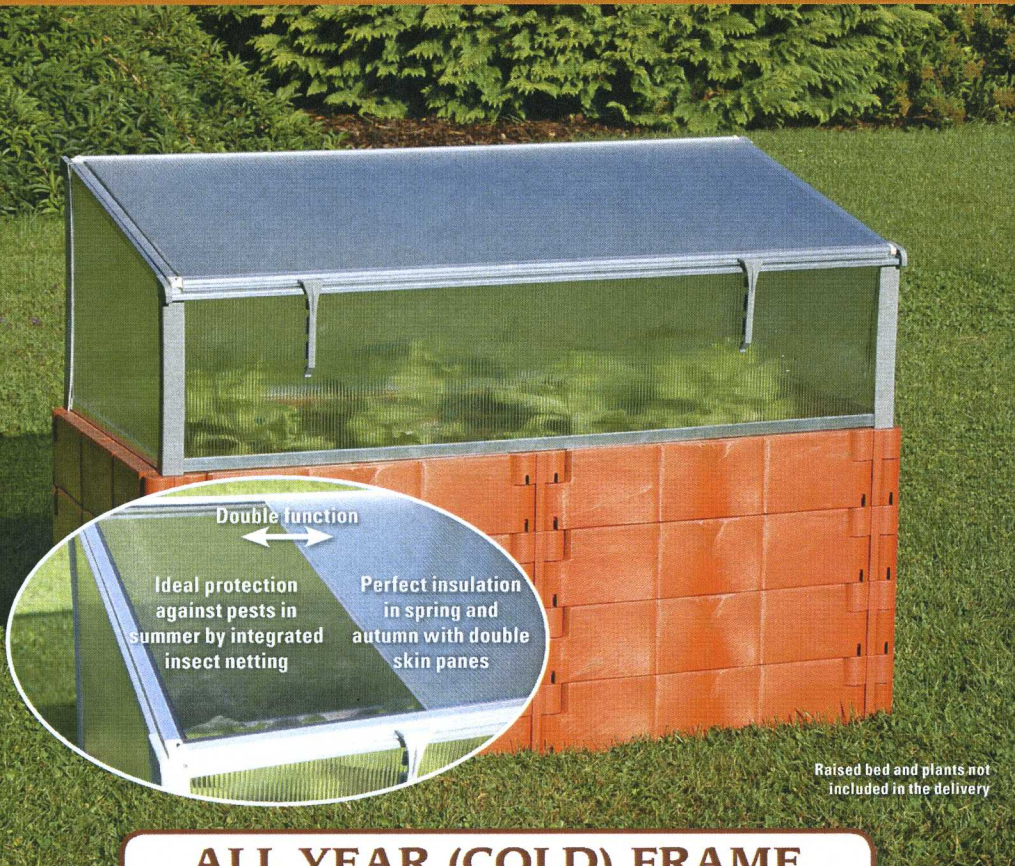

www.juwel.com

It would be great if the cold frame could be used whole year round and not only in spring and autumn.

When the temperature is low, the cold frame is used as usual with the heat-insulating double skin pane and ventilated by opening the window. As it gets warmer, the double skin pane is removed. The insect net lying underneath is the perfect protection for all flying and creeping pests, as well as against heavy rain and hail. It is not necessary to open the window even to water. Water pours through the net in small drops.

The microclimate inside the frame ensures rich harvests. For planting and harvesting the window is conveniently fixed in its open condition.
