Procter & Gamble's Orgulloso program -- an initiative created to celebrate, empower, and fuel Latinas' dreams -- hosted its exclusive "skirts only" fashion show in NYC to showcase and celebrate how the Latina community is made of mujeres con la falda bien puesta™ (women who have their skirts placed well). The fashion show, held at 404 NYC for more than 75 women, had Latina celebrity VIP guests in attendance, including Christina Milian and Adrienne Bailon, who were on-site to celebrate Orgulloso's newly-appointed Board of Faldas (Board of Skirts) and the "everyday Latina woman" who walked the runway wearing one-of-a-kind designs by CENIA. We caught with Christina at the event.

Q: Does this event have special significance to you as a latina in the industry for so long?

Christina Milian: This event is so inspirational. We grow up with so many dreams as young latinas and its great that we are now able to get together through Orgulloso and their Facebook community and really spread our dreams and explain our stories. How we got to where we are, we all have different dreams and aspirations and I think its important we share them because it helps nurture, inspire, and show that we care. It shows that as a sisterhood, we're there for each other, to network, and to make our lives better. Its our time. For me, its also a great time because people like Jennifer Lopez and Gloria Estefan came before me and opened doors for us women. I plan on doing the same thing for my daughter.

Christina Milian: Christina Milian. You have big music happenings right now! You have toured with Usher in the past and now he is joining your show The Voice, that must be exciting! Also, what is it like to now be signed with Young Money?!

A: Its going great so far. Its great to have a repaire already with one of the judges so I already know what he's capable of and what he can do and he is such a great performer so I can't wait to see what he does with his artists on the show. Its great now, we are both grown adults and have kids now so its different. We have a bond over that. For me, being with Young Money is a lot of fun, I get to explore what I want musically. I have a record with Lil Wayne and The Stafford Brothers called 'Hello' thats coming out right now. We just shot the video so be on the lookout for that.
