Racewear Products

www.dstar.global

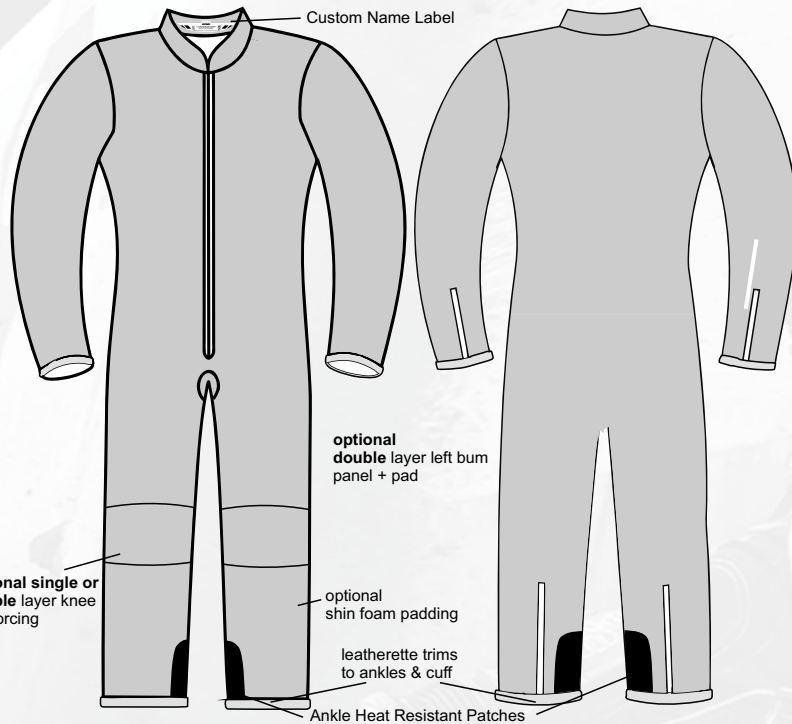

After years of perfecting our high end model race suits we have turned our attention to making a new entry level race suit for 2024, thats stretchy, strong and most importantly coming in at a lower price point than our other models.

The Essentials Model suit is similar to our standard and pro models but cutting out some of the time consuming production features which some customers do not need, and streamlining production. We want this suit to be the same high quality you expect from Dstar, so it still includes ankle heat protection, but just a smaller sized section to reduce costs.

All the suit is made from our Stretch Kevlar Material (used in our other model race suits)
There are no shoulder sponsor panels, no bum or groin area detailing patches like we do in our other models, but still comes with a double lined left bum panel.
All the Essentials needed in a good race suit are there, with high quality materials, zips, stitching, print and design.

STANDARD MODEL

The Standard model race suit has been a feature in the Dstar race suit line up since day one!
The go to suit when you want quality detailing, performance but whilst also keeping an eye on the budget.

The Standard is FIM Specification and the race suit uses a mix of our stretch kevlar material, and our unique high strength abrasion resistant Covec material.

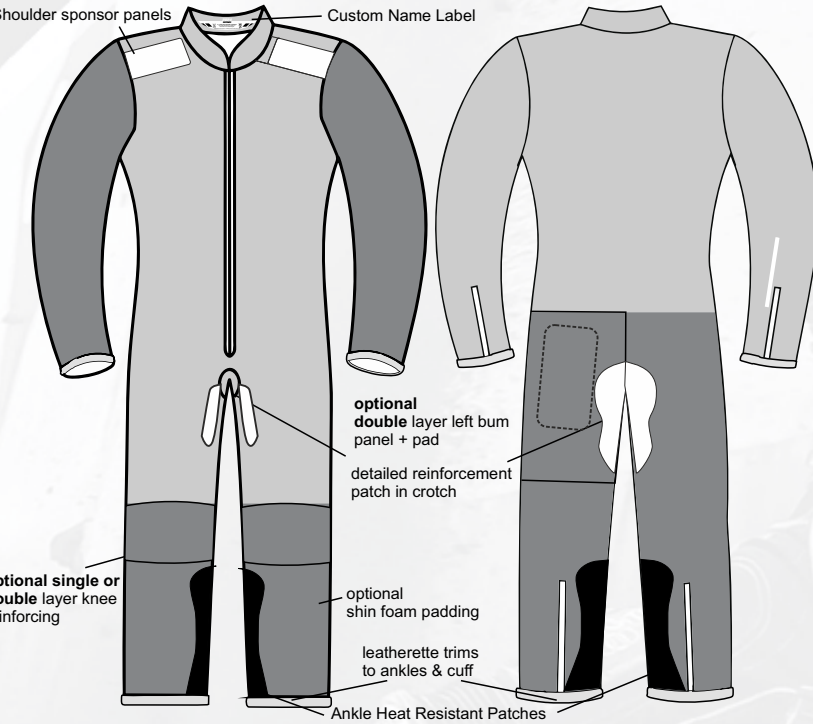

Covec material used in this suit has undergone CE EN 17092-1 abrasion testing, so you can feel good knowing you have the best quality material.

The Covec material is the ONLY material used in Speedway that has a AA 75kph test certificate, which shows it passed an independent test in which its tested to replicate a 28m slide without breakthrough.

We use this in all the areas of the suit where you need material strength, and then all areas which need the best movement are made using stretch kevlar

The Pro Model X23 is our flagship race suit, worn by the best racers in the world and have been worn by multiple world champions. In this model we combine all the highest quality materials available and stitch them together using specialised panelling methods giving you the best possible movement in a race suit, but also being the strongest, most robust race suit on the market.

WHAT IS COVEC RACE SUIT MATERIAL?

Our Covec material is an EU CE EN 17092-1 abrasion tested material we have now used for many years. It's a version on material that is used in Bullit Jeans, which is a global brand of motorcycle road jeans and jackets. The material is unique in how it's made, consisting of three layers;

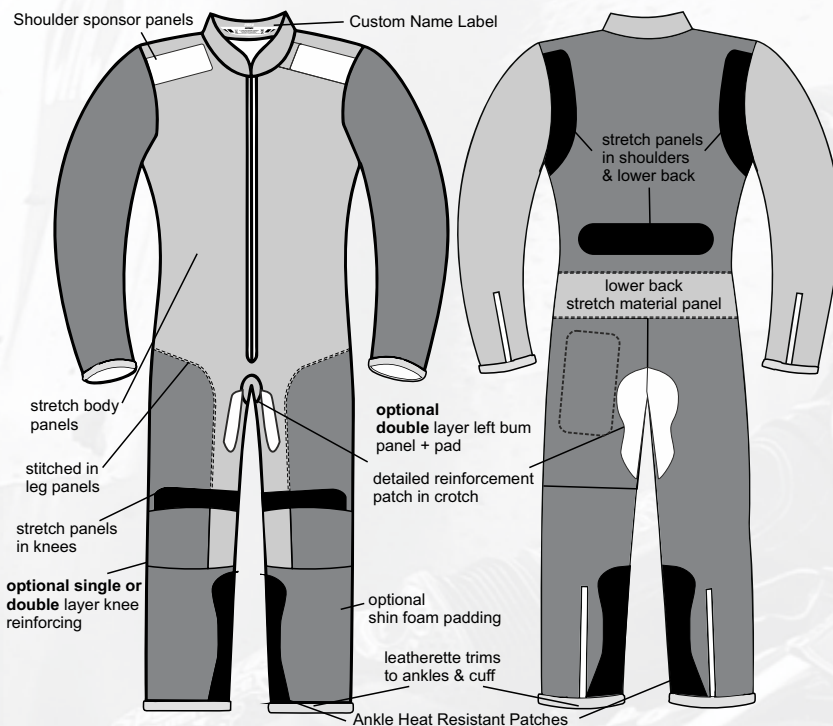

Top Layer - dye sublimation suitable, brightest possible print colours with no fading over time, even stronger for 2023

Middle Layer - Covec yarn, stronger than standard aramid fibres and has high yarn on yarn abrasion resistance so it doesn't weaken throughout its life when washing and in use.

Back Layer - This is a special heat protective backing, which helps avoid friction and heat burns from crashes and hot surfaces.

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE FOR AN AIR JACKET?

Longer shoulder stretch panels which allow for chest and waist expansion when using an air jacket. Extra stretch panel located across the shoulders to aid stretch and extra air jacket expansion, plus slot for pull cord.

WHY HAVE STRETCH PANELS?

Normally, the stretchier the material is, the weaker it becomes. Covec has mechanical stretch to make it the toughest possible. With less stretch in the Covec material, we thought of ways to make the back and knee areas have the best possible movement. We opted to introduce stretch panels to the knees, lower back and shoulders. These panels give two way stretch giving optimal movement in those areas. Also adding more stitching and detailing to suits to give it a premium look and feel.

We have added some extra stretch panelling areas which are printed and look like standard panels, but have multi-way stretch resulting in better movement and fit. You will find these in the lower back, front body and under arm.
