The Original Straw

100% Biodegradable

HAY! Straws are 100% natural and can be composted after use — appropriate for either your backyard compost bin, or a municipal facility.

Made from Wheat Stems

Our wheat stems are harvested by hand, and the best ones are selected for making HAY! Straws®. This ensures the highest level of quality, and a charming level of natural variation.

Eco Packaging

We use unbleached kraft boxes and print with UV technology to avoid waste and reduce VOCs gases for workers and planet Earth. We're proud to deliver our product in plastic-free packaging.

Minimally Processed

Unlike paper straws, which go through a pulping process with added chemicals, HAY! Straws® are made from wheat in its natural state. No chemicals are added — ever.

Hot Drink Approved

HAY! Straws® can be used in hot AND cold beverages.

Gluten-Free

Gluten intolerant? Not a problem. Our straws have been tested by the University of Nebraska Lincoln, Food Allergy and Resource Program, and they fall well below the threshold of what's officially considered gluten-free.

NON GMO

Our straws are currently sourced globally by using a mixture of organic and conventional farming. HAY! Straws® does not use GMO wheat.

Never Soggy

HAY! Straws® will not break down inside of the beverage. Wheat stems are naturally water resistant, so they hold up well in liquids over time.

Introducing HAY! Straws®, made from...well...straw!

The basic principle of the drinking straw dates back to the Sumerians of ancient Mesopotamia (a region that included now modern-day Iraq, Syria, Turkey and Iran) between 3000 – 5000 BC. Straws at this time were made of natural materials, like hollow stems of grass, and used to drink beer.

Fast forward a few thousand years and hit reverse to 2018 when plastic straws start getting banned in various places. We decided to launch the company in response to the dire need for a quality natural drinking straw. Our Ocean and Earth friendly product is a great sustainable alternative to both plastic and paper. It sounds a little funny explaining, but modern drinking straws are called "straws" because when you remove the head of a wheat stalk, you are left with the stem (or straw) which we now call HAY! Straws®.

HAY! Straws® are simply made from gluten-free wheat stems, which are the byproduct of the crop's production. Wheat is typically grown for its grain, which gets made into flour and other food products. Once the plant reaches maturity and turns golden yellow, the grain is harvested off. The wheat stems get cut and made into things like hay for animal feed and, in our case, straws - hence the name HAY! Straws!®

With that being said, our product is 100% biodegradable, which means that it won't linger in landfills, polluting our land or oceans. The straw has a similar feel and function to the plastic we've all become so accustomed to, but without the toxins and the damaging footprint on our Earth.

So what else is awesome about HAY!? Our straws can be tossed right in the compost bin after use. Unlike plastic straws, HAY! Straws® will break down naturally, returning back to the Earth. Pairing perfectly with sodas, cocktails, juice or any of your favorite iced or hot beverages, you will be in for a real treat using our "seed to sip" drinking straws.

The Jumbo Straw

100% Biodegradable

HAY! Jumbo Straws are 100% natural and certified by the USDA Biopreferred program as 100% biobased. They can be composted after use in either your backyard compost bin, or a municipal facility.

Made from Reed Stems

Reed stems grow in a variety of diameters so we sort by size and length to minimize waste before the cutting process. Once cut Jumbo straws are washed, sterilized with high heat and packed. Each straw is unique, just like the plant it came from.

Eco Packaging

We use unbleached kraft boxes and print with UV technology to avoid waste and reduce VOCs gases for workers and planet Earth. We're proud to deliver our product in plastic-free packaging.

Minimally Processed

Unlike paper straws, which go through a pulping process with added chemicals, HAY! Straws® Jumbo are made from reed stems in their natural form. No binding agents or bioplastics here.

Hot Drink Approved

HAY! Straws® can be used in hot AND cold beverages.

Wheat-Free

Gluten or wheat intolerant? Not a problem. Our Jumbo straws are made from reed NOT wheat stems. To be considered gluten-free, products must have <5ppm of gluten - our results are "Not detected" and are gluten-free.

NON GMO

Our reed stems are currently sourced globally from natural sites and are not sprayed with any pesticides or fungicides. The plants have never been genetically altered for farming purposes.

Never Soggy

HAY! Straws® will not break down inside of the beverage. Wheat stems are naturally water resistant, so they hold up well in liquids over time.
