

Why do we feed horses spearmint?

At Omega Equine we are often asked the question 'What does Spearmint do?' so we felt that this was a topic to explain more about to help both consumers and stockists.

Spearmint is the most natural feed appetiser and can enhance the appetite of a fussy eater or a horse/pony that is unwell and put off by feed, it is loved by horses due to the subtle smell of the minty flakes and the taste.

Using Spearmint can help disguise any medication your horse or pony is prescribed without the need for molasses or anything sugary, this makes it the perfect compliment for horses or ponies suffering with laminitis, cushings or any other disorders which require a low sugar diet.

As most of you know mint is used in the human diet especially in tea to aid digestion or settle the stomach after upsets, this has been passed over to the equine diet and we are seeing mint being used much more within the equine diet for these issues. At Omega Equine we source all of our mint from a human grade supplier so you can guarantee it is supplied to you in it's freshest form with the lovely minty smell to accompany it.
