

10 Products That Will Save Your Skin This Winter

I'm particularly bah-humbug when it comes to winter. I think snow is wet and cold, and heavy coats make me feel claustrophobic. But the thing that makes me dislike the winter season the most? Probably the fact that my winter skin is a complete and total nightmare. It's dry. It's flaking. It's red. I get random zits while my face is flaking off? So, IMO, if there was ever a time to stock up on new skincare products, it's now.

So to help myself (plus, obviously any of you that are suffering from the horrible combo that is dry air, cold temps, and holiday stress), I've rounded up a few of the best winter skincare products out now.

Shiffa Emerald Clarifying Face Oil

$75

SHOP IT

Winter: The absolute perfect time to fight breakouts with, yes, oil. This purifying oil blend uses oils that are rich in linoleic acid, which is known for its acne-fighting properties. If your skin is a little dry, pat this one before your moisturizer, but you can also use it on its own in the place of your daily moisturizer.

