Directions:

Add 4 gallons of water and mash at 150°F for 60 minutes. While mashing, add 4.5 gallons of water to your hot liquor tank and bring to 185 degrees fahrenheit. Wash grain using either a batch or fly sparge, however your system is set up. You should end with around 7.25 gallons of wort in your kettle. Boil for 60 minutes, following listed hop additions and adding 1.5 lbs of Dextrose with 15 minutes left in the boil. If using an immersion chiller, don't forget to put it in your boil with 15 minutes left as well for sterilization, right after you add your Dextrose and chosen clarifier. You should transfer 5.5 gallons of cooled wort into your fermentor to account for fermentation losses, so don't forget to calculate your system losses and boil off volume into the given volumes. Ferment for 14 days. Crash chill for 24 hours on day 14, then add 4 oz of Dextrose and bottle, or rack to your keg, force carbonate and enjoy!

Style:

25A – Belgian Blond Ale

This is a super dry, extremely satisfying rendition of a classic style. Pear and pepper phenolics lovingly assault your taste buds, and give this beer a super complex flavor profile with a dry, crisp finish. This blonde is the favorite guest for weddings and summer outings, and has a way about her that converts light lager fanatics to her side.
