Directions:

Add steeping grains to your water and allow to steep as the water comes to a boil. At 168° F, remove steeping grains and allow water to come to a boil. Once boiling, turn off flame. Stir in all Malt Extracts and ensure all is dissolved. Turn your flame back on. When it starts to boil again, begin your timer for a 60 minute boil. From there, follow directions for hop and clarifier additions. Cool your wort down to 70 - 80 degrees, transfer to your fermenter, and pitch yeast. Cover with airlock and allow 14 days at 65-70 degrees for fermentation to complete if using an ale yeast strain, or 28 days at 48-55 degrees if using a lager yeast strain. Crash chill for 24-48 hours at 40 degrees, then transfer to keg. If bottling, transfer to bottling bucket and add 4 ounces of Dextrose sugar and allow to sit for 1 week at room temperature, then 1 week in the fridge before enjoying.

Style:

1A – American Light Lager

Crisp and refreshing under the desert sun, this traditional light lager takes us back to our roots with common American and Mexican ingredients. Great as a base for fruit and peppers, or just as the best possible way to drink homebrew in the intense summer heat!
