

TECHNICOLOUR DREAMS

DESIGN EXPERTS CAN WORK WITH ANY PALETTE BUT THEY ALL HAVE A FAVOURITE...

“Yellow is frenetic, energetic and gloriously happy. It can take you into a dirty world, or flip and turn itself into a serious fluoro pop. It’s a radiant chameleon, changing its skin when paired with, say, green or orange. Its undertone is always doing something different — she’s my kind of gal”

“It may not surprise anyone that my favourite colour is green and always has been. Green signifies life and energy and I find it yields a happier mood for my family when we are surrounded by it. From soft sage to punchy apple and emerald greens and all in between. It’s a versatile hue. I find it hopeful and love that it resembles growth – that’s reassuring to me. Colour is energy made visible, identifying how certain colours make you feel and adding them to the appropriate spaces. Once you master this skill, it’s game-changing”

“I love using neutral colour palettes as the foundation of interior schemes to enable evolving style and create spaces that are timeless and calm. Neutral colours can sometimes come across as stark or cold, so I always layer different tones with a mix of interesting textures, shapes and forms to add character and warmth to my spaces. Playing around with scale and materiality creates pockets of interest within a neutral palette. This layered style strikes the perfect balance between understated luxury and a feel-good, lived-in design aesthetic that I never tire of”
