This journey to the grandest and most beautiful libraries of the world will make you fall in love with books all over again.

Libraries are so much more than collections of books. They are archives of knowledge, spaces of study, sources of inspiration and connection. Among the world’s most universal and democratic places, they are also outstanding icons of architecture that represent the societies that built them. Temples of Books celebrates the world’s oldest and grandest shrines to the written word, as well as new and tiny ones: from baroque palaces to micro-libraries made of recycled plastics, and the unlikely ones in between. Looking at the diverse architecture of global libraries throughout the ages, Temples of Books goes further and explores the very idea of libraries themselves. This is a book about the beauty of books, a book for book lovers and for those who believe in the power of ideas.

WHAT TO EXPECT

- A journey around the world through the lens of its libraries revealing how varied their purpose can be
- Portraits of some of the oldest, most beautiful, smallest, and strangest libraries
- Reflections on the importance of libraries in our increasingly digital world

COME TOGETHER

The Architecture of Multigenerational Living

Three or four generations living under one roof, sharing their rooms, meals, and lives—this is multigenerational living. Around the world this more communal approach to living is getting increasingly popular. It’s not just within the family. New models of老化ing are bringing people from different backgrounds and generations who might not typically live together all into the same shared home.

So what’s the difference between a multigenerational home and simply a big house? Come Together explores the why, the what, the where and, most importantly, the how of the homes that succeed at being liveable for all ages—with designs created by architects around the globe that are not only stunning, but balance flexibility, age-inclusivity, privacy, and communal spaces for multiple generations to come together.

JOANN PLOCKOVA is a renowned design writer who contributes to the New York Times international homes section. She also writes for the likes of Monocle, Azure, and the Financial Times House & Home. She lives and works from Prague, her adopted home, and the US, her original one, whilst living part-time in a multigenerational home.
The cities we live in can do more for us. They can be more accessible. More desirable. More resourceful, shared, and safe. In fact, these five qualities are exactly what Copenhagen-based research and design lab SPACE10 sees as the ingredients of an ideal city. Rapid development, growing populations, and an accelerating climate crisis—all of these are just some of the challenges we face. But the good news is that we have never been more equipped to create a better everyday life in our cities. In The Ideal City, we hear from the people around the world who are transforming the urban environment, including architects Jan Gehl and Bjarke Ingels and entrepreneur Robin Chase. This is an optimistic book about the future of cities, bringing together the best and brightest examples of the urban future.

SPACE10 researches and designs innovative solutions to some of the major shifts expected to affect people and our planet in the years to come. SPACE10 is proudly supported by and entirely dedicated to IKEA.

“While acknowledging that utopia doesn’t exist, and that top-down urban planning isn’t necessarily the right approach, SPACE10 puts forth a number of ways to improve existing cities and create new building models for undeveloped areas.” ARCHITECTURAL DIGEST US

“You’ll come away from these pages realizing that although design leadership is never in question, what’s needed most is political will.” WALLPAPER

The perfect city is yet to be built, but through collective actions the next generation could have it in sight.

Evergreen Architecture gets to the roots of plant-filled facades, indoor gardens and tree-filled buildings alike.

If you look at recent buildings around the world, you’ll soon see that a plant-led approach is taking root. Nature and architecture have never been more intertwined, and there are more ways than ever to bring the two together: green roofs, living walls, lush courtyards, indoor gardens, and entire skyscrapers covered in plants. As more of the Earth’s surface is swallowed up by the built environment, architects are increasingly up to the task of integrating greenery into their creations.

Evergreen Architecture showcases new buildings and proposals where living plants play a leading role. From humble homes in California to sprawling green complexes in Singapore, this book explores how a green movement is starting to sprout in new and inventive ways around the world.
SOIL, SEEDS, AND CONCRETE CAN BE THE UNEXPECTED FORMULA FOR A GREENER LIFE IN THE CITY.

From beekeeping on rooftops to underground mushroom farms, Urban Farmers explores the rich world of planting, growing, and harvesting in modern cities. Presenting a mix of in-depth case studies, step-by-step activities, and essays by experts in the field, this book gives you the opportunity to learn from the best and get your hands dirty—be it on your balcony, in a community garden, or even by starting a business. Equipped with the right knowledge and the proper tools, a better life in a greener city is truly possible. Soil, seeds, and concrete can be the unexpected formula for a healthier life. Urban farming is the global movement that invites citizens to reconnect with nature from the very heart of the metropolis.

“We could call it deep resilience, in the most literal and concrete sense possible: resisting and reacting to adversity by sinking our hands into the earth, choosing the only physical contact and relationships allowed in these times of pandemic, seeking strength in that primordial energy that gives birth, dies, but always survivors. At least this is the feeling—and perhaps the ultimate intention—we open the book Urban Farmers.” (translated from Italian) ELLE (IT)

Roots and Wings explores the life and work of Peter Schreyer, one of the most influential car designers of our time—a book about heritage, creative vision, and leadership, and what design can do for the future.

How do you create a desirable, unique, and authentic brand these days? In 2014, two visionaries started to rebuild one of Paris’s long-forgotten apothecaries. Suitably renamed Officine Universelle Buly, the brand is now one of the most beloved names in beauty, sold in almost every corner of the globe. Conveying the best of traditional retail, such as personalization and craftsmanship, with the indispensable values of today, like sustainability and digitalization, this brand is the perfect case study on successfully reviving a heritage company.

With detailed insights from creator Ramdane Touhami, The Beauty of Time Travel discloses the vital lessons learned along the way. It explains how to blend the excellence of the past with the best of the present, how to effectively communicate a brand story to the world, and how to keep people guessing. These insights and trade secrets will give you the tools needed to replicate such success for yourself.

This book tells the story of how to transform a vintage brand into a global success story. The key ingredients include: integrity, attention to detail, and an insatiable curiosity for the world.

Ramdane Touhami is an internationally renowned designer, creative director, and entrepreneur. Officine Universelle Buly is known globally in the cosmetics world and also for its approach to branding. Touhami continues to head the brand alongside partner Victoire de Taillac.

“Expect to find several different conversations in the book, from how branding can “reinvent traditions,” to how retail designers can combine traditional retail experiences with sustainability and digitalization. Accompanying this is an extensive collection of prints and photographs.” DESIGN WEEK

Could you live permanently on the road? When all your belongings fit in a few bags, your office is a roadside diner, and your home is a meandering route from Canada to the southern tip of Argentina?

Strapping the necessities onto his bicycle, he ventures into desolate wastelands and sojourns in vast cities, exploring what it means to be at home in the world while embracing a life of minimalism and long-term travel. Along the winding roads of California’s coasts, the impenetrable jungles of Mexico, the ever-higher passes of the Andes Mountains, and the severe alpine forests of Patagonia, Doolaard eschews comfort and convention for the sake of documenting life on one of the world’s most breathtaking—and notorious—routes.

From short sailing trips to longer cruises along coastlines or across the oceans, this book celebrates the nautical way of life.

Since the dawn of time, exploring the world by boat has been seen as the pinnacle of freedom. There is no greater adventure than setting sail, at the mercy of the wind, being sprayed by salty water as you voyage from island to island and sea to sea, discovering new landscapes and cultures.

Sailing the Seas will take readers on a series of nautical adventures across the globe, from the coast of the US down to the Caribbean, through classic Mediterranean voyages and on trips in far-flung locations such as Thailand and French Polynesia. Presenting a fresh, younger side of sailing, this volume reveals the sights, sounds, tastes, and experiences that can be had on board a boat.

With beautiful photos of locations, detailed itineraries, and ‘Captain’s Notes’ filled with useful tips and insights on destinations, Sailing the Seas will inspire novice sailors and ‘old salts’ alike to take to the waves.

A SPOONFUL OF SUN

Mediterranean Cookbook for All Seasons

Where the Mediterranean diet meets design: this cookbook feeds your taste buds, your eyes, and your joie de vivre.

Hilltop villages, pristine caves, lavender, vineyards, and a balmy sun. The smell of herbs in the air. Drawn-out aperitifs on terraces. Provence is a feast for the senses that epitomises the French art of slow living. At the heart of it, there is always a table. In this book, Pauline Chardin shares her delicious, healthy, and—best of all—easy recipes. Using seasonal fruit and veg from her local market and her garden, Chardin’s cuisine is rooted in the Med, yet flavored by her travels around the world.

This is more than just a cookbook. With a keen sense for design, Chardin knows that the eye takes the first bite. A Spoonful of Sun lavishes us with aesthetic pleasures too, taking us around the house Chardin designed for herself, into the irresistible surrounds of her Provençal home, and back to what matters most: the food on the table.

WHAT TO EXPECT

- A variety of original dishes with recipes for cooks of all levels
- A modern approach to Mediterranean cuisine using seasonal, affordable, easy-to-find ingredients
- Exclusively created and shot by Pauline Chardin herself, an experienced photographer and creative director

Pauline Chardin is a French creative director, food expert, stylist, and photographer. Her work and lifestyle have been featured in publications such as Milk Magazine, 4D, or Ignant. She lives in Provence, in a house she designed with her partner.
