Hamza Goodwin was born in Washington, DC to muallaf parents who found their way to mainstream Islam through various grass roots transformational movements in the late 60s. He was sent to an Islamic boarding school at the age of 9 and was trained in classical Islamic teachings, linguistics and conventional academic studies until the age of 16. After finishing his high school diploma, Hamza Goodwin, being entrepreneur-minded, immediately sought ways and ideas to open his own business. After working 1 year as an artist's assistant in Taos, NM and purchasing his first car, he founded Earth Care Landscaping and Construction. After 10 successful years in landscaping and building the first Mosque in Northern New Mexico he moved to Indonesia to start a new chapter in his life.

Due to the desire to be financially independent, he then started IndoMode Fashion and Jewelry, now known as IndoMode International, LLC. For the next 12 years he spent around 6 months out of the year in Indonesia and the other 6 months in South Carolina. Exporting merchandise to the US and opening a store in Downtown Charleston was a perfect fit that allowed him to travel freely back and forth. In 2005 he started moving his business online which was just in time before the economic crash of 2008. In 2011 he closed his store and began to sell solely online. Presently, with a small team, he runs and manages multiple e-commerce sites, and internet marketplaces in the USA and Indonesia selling to clients globally.
