Barbara Siedle

Barbara Siedle has established herself as one of the foremost watercolour artists, specialising in the field of wildlife. Barbara's love of the bush takes her throughout Southern Africa to capture subject matter for her work. These can be seen in many a game lodge, as they are not only decorative but informative too. Many visitors purchase them as a memento of their visit, or a memory of their favourite animal.

Barbara attended the Michaelis School of Art, UCT and then the Munich Academy of Fine Art in Germany where she studied painting and sculpture under Prof. Kirchner.

In 2014, Barbara published a book "Breathe the Dust", which is a personal journal of her art career and travels into some of the remotest parts of Southern Africa.
